The first Olympic Games took place in Greece more than 600 years ago. They had the competitions not only in sport, but in music, speaking and theatre performances as well. Only men could take part in them, but not women.

Then for one thousand and five hundred years nothing was heard of them. The modern Olympic Games began in 1896 and nine countries took part in them. The Olympics took place in Greece, but after that every four years the Olympics moved to another city.
